MIDDLETOWN POST OFFICE.

Postmaster Cox Leaves a Creditab Alfred G. Cox, who for the past for years has been Post Master at Middle tow retired from office Thursday night, havi-turned the office over to Postmaster Willia H. Moore, who was recently appointed that position.

Mr. Moore enters upon his duties under very favorable circumstance, having re ceived considerable instruction from predecessor, who for several weeks ha been coaching him upon the most approved methods and giving him many hetps initiatory to taking full charge of the business, which is no small affair, for the Middletown Post Office is one of the most important in the state. Besides four daily mails north and south, the mail to and from five other offices is handled here: Odessa, Warwick, Cecilton, Earleville and Sassafras, and there are no busier people in town than the Postmaster and his clerks especially between the hours of 6 and 11

When Mr. Cox became Postmaster the office paid a salary $1300. The business has increased very much during his terr and the second year paid $1400 and the third year $1500. The fourth year there was a decrease in the business and the salary went back to $1400; but has again reached its maximum of $1500. The governnt also allows $200 for clerk's salary. $200 for rent and $53 for light and fuel, and allows the Postmaster a commission on all money orders and postal notes issued and paid. The Postmaster furnishes his own ent and office outfit.

During the past four years the Middletown Post Office has been better equipped and more conveniently arranged that at any previous time, and Mr. Cox added improvements to old methods of service. He has been the most progressive Postmaster we have ever had, and we have no doubt his successor will endeave make as good a record in public service r will endeavor to Mr. Moore will continue the office in the same place in the Town Hall building, and takes the same fixtures that Mr. Cox ha Mr. Cox remains with Mr. Moore for the present, and will be at his old post until the new P. M., get the run of things.

The Railroad Co. delivers the mail from the station to the Post Office free of charge when the distance is within 80 rods. Other wise the government must furnish a mail This is one of the points urged in favor of the office being kept where it is.

How nice it would be if "Uncle Sam" would build us a nice Post Office building.

Some do-not many. ditions in general, and human motives Then why should you be a Democra simply because your father was?

Look at the facts as they are. In your short life you have seen both parties on trial. Now candidly, which do you think has run the affairs of the government to the best interests of the people. You saw prosperity under Repression when the Democrats came into power. You have seen plenty of work in that message this characteristic followed by plenty of idleness, haven't you? Are you again going to vote to keep in power a party which has dem-onstrated its absolute incapacity to run the government? Under what obligations are you to the Democrat party that you should still continue to vote its ticket when you know its recordand what a record it has made in one year-Contemplate it calmly and seriously and then ask yourself if it is not better to break away from the party which has broken up the industries of the country and which to-day is doing more injury to the workingmen than they ever experienced before

SENATOR GRAY compares the Sugar Trust Bribery Investigating Committee to a coroner's jury as to its functions and powers. It doesn't make much difference what it is like so it gets at the bottom of the truth. That is what the people want and they do not believe they are being treated right when

THE high character of Senator Higgins' ability was well established, long before he entered the U. S. Senate, and those who knew him best, felt very sure of the position would have on the floor of the Senate. He has already given ample proof that, in grasp of the National problems before the Senate. he is the peer of any of his fellow members. The Republicans of Delaware are rightly proud of Anthony Higgins, and when they sent him to the U. S Senate, they honored themselves and their State in honoring him.

THE Washington correspondent to the St. Paul Despatch pays a high compliment to Senator Higgins, and of his recent speech in the Senate, says: Mr. Higgins made a speech the other day which did more to quicken the Senate blood than anything that has transpired in this Congress. It was a at Boston, in October of 1891: speech that should have been made long a 70: A speech which for boldness, blilliancy and braininess has not been equalled in the Senate this session And the best part came, too, after the interruptions.

WE publish, in another column, a editorial clipping from the New York Sun. If it were a Republican criticism, It might be thought, by some, to be nothing more than heated denunciation, uttered in a spirit of partisan vindictiveness. But coming from such a source, the reader is at once disarmed of any such accusiation, and is left to from the undermining decay of sordidness view the plain deduction, drawn by the writer, from Mr. Cleveland's own words. THE SOCIALISTIC TEACHINGS OF

The seed of all such riotous and bloody disturbances as are now witessed in Pennsylvania and elsewhere is in the teachings of public writers and speakers who take the tone which is almost invariably employed by Gro ver Cleveland in his discussions of the relations of capital to labor.

Through the hazy verbiage of Mr. Cleveland's accustomed style there appears one fixed and constant purpose whenever the subject is touched. That purpose is to excite and increase. so far as he can do it by indirect suggestion or by the choice of adjective, the hostility of labor to capital, of the employed to the employer, of the less prosperous citizen to the more prosperous. The utterances of Mr. Cleve land concerning the greed and selfishness of wealth, and the oppressive and injustice which are the portion of toiling industry, have been too frequent o admit of any explanation other than that of diliberate purpose to provoke his vecabulary are rejeated over and over again in his speeches, letters, and messages. His attitude is not merely accidental or rhetorical. It is some thing more than an expression of the eevishness and pessimism with which apart from his own. A few extracts from the public de liverance of the President will illustrate what must be regarded as a systematic and persistant endeavor on his part to array class against class in the community. As long ago as April, 1886 he wrote a special message to Conpublican Administration. You saw a gress, substantially recommending striking change from prosperity to debetween labor and capital; and we find entence: The discontent of the employed is due, in a large degree to the grasping and heedless exactions of employers.

In December of the same year Mr. Cleveland's second annual message contained a passage which could hardly have been improved upon by any socialistic agitator aiming to bring about the very condition of discontent and distrust which the president affected to "Those who toil for daily wages are be-inning to understand that capital, though man is thoughtfully inquiring whether, in these circumstances and considering the tribute he constantly pays into the public treasury as he supplies his daily wants, he receives his fair share of advantage. There is also a suspicion abroad that the surplus of our revenues indicates abnormal and ex-ceptional business profits, which, under the system which produces such a surplus, in crease, without corresponding benefit to the people at large, the vast accumulations of a few among our citizens, whose fortunes rivalling the wealth of the most favored in anti-democratic nations, are not the natural growth of a steady, plain and industriou

Two years later, in his message of December, 1888, Mr. Cleveland drew for the benefit of his disciples this picture of strongly contrasted social con ditions, and of the gross injustice underlying them: "Our cities are the abiding places wealth and luxury; our manufacturie yield fortunes never dreamed of by the fathers of the republic; our business men are madly striving in the race for riches, and the imaginations in the magnitude of their ndertakings. Upon a more careful ins ion we find the wealth and luxury of ou cities mingled with poverty and wretched ness and unremunerative toil. We discove that the fortunes realized by our manufac turers are no longer solely the reward of steady industry and enlightened foresight, but that they result from the discrimina ting favor of the Government, and are largely built upon undue exactions from the masses of our people. The gulf be-tween employers and employed is constant-ly widening and classes are rapidly formof aggregated capital we discover the existence of trusts, combinations and monopo lies, while the citizen is struggling far in

To create dissatisfaction, to encourtunate citizens with hatred of his richer fellow, is the first aim of practical Socialists. Few men in recent years have done more to promote that first object of the revolutionists of society than the President of the United States. For whatever may be the intrinsic value of sometimes vanuting its importance and clamoring for the protection and favor of the Government, is dull and sluggish until touched by the marical hand of labor, it touched by the magical hand of labor, it springs into activity. And the laboring phlets or tracts or newsaper articles are not worth, for anarchistic purposes one phrase like that in which the President of the United States represents tachian Tube, When this tube gets the average citizen as "struggling far in the rear, or trampled to death beneath an iron heel."

There is not one word in all of th assages here cited from Mr. Cleveland's letters and speeches which might not have been written and published by any avowed revolutionist now engaged in the socialistic propaganda. These are teachings of the disturbers of society, rible fruit.

WASHINGTON LETTER.

WASHINGTON, May 30th, 1894 .-Does the sticky trial of the sugar candal lead the White House? Statesments made by Democrats, mind you, it did, and the action of the investigating committee, in pretending to be greatly exercised because them a Democrat, and Senator Murphey's private Secretary, have declined to give the names of those who gave them information, has not weakened the indications. The committee may be perfectly honest in its attempt to make the correspondents tell the names of their informants, but experience should warn them of the time they are wasting. There is probably not a newspaper correspondent in Washington ing, one comprising the very rich and powerful, while in another are found the toiling poor. As we view the achievements any man who had given him informed who would not go to jail and stay any man who had given him informa tion in confidence, and nobody knows this any better than the Senators o this com nittee; hence the belief that they are merely using the correspondents in making a play for time, in stead of asking the men who have been from the pen of Coxey or from the directly connected with the scandal for mouth of Johann Most. In the same the information that will establish directly connected with the scandal for tue truth or falsity of the charge that the sugar trust dictated the sugar schedule of the tariff bill. The pres ent actions of the committee confirm the impression of those who predicted from the first that the whole investi gation would be as great a fizzle as that part of it which dealt with the alleged attempt to bribe Senators.

Several votes in the Senate having emonstrated that the last bargain The rich man's millions can do nothtook in all of the Democrats, except Hill, as well as the Populists, and that the tariff bill as bargained for is going to get their votes, it is probable allicans will in a few days agree to the setting of a day for the final vote on th bill. The sugar schedule will be reached this week and an effort will be mirde to upset it, but for the reasons set forth above it will hardly succeed.

Civil Service Commissioner Rooseve has got his fighting blood up. During cratic attempt to drop the appropriation for the Civil Service Commission, Repesentatives Pendleton, of W. Va. Mr. Roosevelt sent a communication to Representa-

I wish she came home more frequently, and then we could talk over these matters."

He seized a telegraph blank and wrote: "Mrs. John Madax, 20 Bullion Court, City-Can you run over to Old I have a lot of stockbrokers dining Gold Alley for a few minutes? I wish to consult you on business .- MADAX."

He rang the bell for a telegraph boy and sent the message, then paced up and down his room again, waiting for his wife to appear. Instead, there came a prompt answer, which he tore Call on me at 1 o'clock and I will take you to the club, where we can lunch and have a quiet talk .- JOAN MADAX."

The worried man consulted his watch. It was not yet 11 o'clock. It would be more than two hours before he could see his wife, He sat down at his desk and devoted himself for these two boars to what business there was in hand. Then he brushed himself up a bit, took his walking stick and drove in a hansom to his wife's offices in Bullion Court. After having sent in his name, a neat little girl showed him into a room and told him that Mrs. Madax would be with him presently. She was sorry to keep him Sketch for him to look over during the interval. The Sketck was a paper started in the nineteenth century, and was at that time considered to le rather in advance of other slow-gowing weeklies. Now, however, it was thought to be the correct paper for a man to read, although the women paid club building, overlooking a bit of the little attention to it. In the reception room two or three other men were waiting, nursing their hats, I'resently the office girl came in and told them all, except Madax, that Mrs. Madax couldn't possibly see them until later in the day, as she had an appointment, and would they be good enough to call about 4 o'clock. So the men took their departure and Madax was left alone with his paper, although his wife entered very soon after. She was a tall woman with fine, clear-cut, dscided features. As far as the upper part of her was concerned she was dressed almost like a man. She wore a somewhat glaring

"Yes, madam." "Come a along, John, we have no time to loose," said Mrs. Madax, decidedly, and leading the way she opened the carriage door, whereupon he stepped inside. "To the Pine Ear Club," said the lady to the coachman.

She took her seat beside her husband and the carriage drove off toward the West End. In a short time it drew up before a palatial building standing where the Hotel Metropole once stood. This, as every one knows is the sumptuous resort of women engaged in business in the city. It is higher-priced than the Carlton or Reform, but is much more luxurous than either of these old-fashioned men clubs.

"Call for me at half-past three," said the lady. The stately doors of the club were opened by two girl porters and the couple entered. The lady wrote her husband's name in a book which was on a stand in the hall, and together they entered the large dining room, where they took their places at one of the large

"I wish you would," said Madax, "the children miss you very much. Why don't you come home oftener?"

taste it."
"Well," said Madax, "I will tell the children that you send your love to them, but I think you know that a woman shouldn't lose sight of her children, even though business is absorbing."

She urged him to take his share of the champagne, but Mabax declined, saying: "A man must keep his head clear for business nowadays."

"Yes," said his wife, "I suppose a man must." There was a slight tinge of sarcast in her voice, and she put unnecessary emphasis on the noun. Madax looked waiting, but she sent a copy of the grieved, but said nothing. How often do women in their thoughtless rudeness cause pain to the tender hearts of those who love them! After lunch was over Mrs. Madax led the way up stairs to the private smoking room which she had reserved for their use. It was in a corner of the river and commanding a view of Char-

"Why didn't you speak to me about it?" she cried. Her husband flushed uneasily.

"I wanted to do something off my own bat," he said. "Of course I had no idea at that time there would be a "Corner!" she cried contemptuously.

'there's always a corner; there's bound to be a corner. Don't you know enough not to look to the United States any more for indications of the wheat market? India and the Baltic hold the key to the situation."

Mrs. Madax's eves sparkled as she looked down at her husband: "Can you really do all that?" she said almost breathlessly. "Yes, if I had any assurance that we would get out with a little profit. It seems to me that all their influence thrown in on our side of the market wheat would rise enough to get out of the hole at least."

"Oh!" said his wife, "that is a different matter. I didnt know you had any plans. yes," she added after thinking a moment with knitted brows "that's a first-rate idea. How much money do you think it would all total up to?"

"About a million," said Madax, pleased to see that he was getting more attention than censure.

"A million," said his wife, more to herself than him. "Are you certain you could get all that amount on your side of the market?"

"Quite certain Mrs. Madax, as she continued her pacing up and down, seemed to be naking some mental calculation. She finally asked:

"Who are you running against Who is at the head the corner?" "Oh, that," said Madax, "none of us knows. The business is done through the Tokio and Jamboree Bank, but we dont know who is behind it." "Now, doesn't it strike you the first thing for you to do is to find out who you are butting against? If its a stone wall the sooner you know it the better so that you can stop before your head gets hurt. If its a hedge you might manage to get through. It would have been my first work to find who was against me."

"But," said her husband, "don't I tell you that I didn't know there as anybody on the other side of the mar-

"Oh!" said his wife, impatiently, 'you can always count on somebody eing on the other side of the market So, you can't find out who it is?" 'We can't." said her husband.

"Very well," she said. "Now listen to me. You have got £25,000 in this, and if you can get all the money of Sir "Well, John," she cried, "excuse me pockets and began to pace up and down Casar and his friends to help you, I will arantee that you will con double—that is, £50,000."

"Do you mean it?" cried her husbar eagerly.

"I mean it," said his wife solemnly. "And may I tell Sir Cæsar that you said so?" he asked.

"No; whatever information I wish Sir Cæsar to have I will give him myself. You will tell him that you have had private information and are not allowed to mention the dealer's name. "Very good," said Madax, with an intense relief in his face. "Do not let it get out," continued his wife. "Use all your force and see if you can raise the market, and as soon as the price gets up sell out at once Have all your plans made for selling out. Promptness is the thing in these matters. Now I must go. I will drop you down at your office."

Mr. Madax knew what his wife said about the markets generally came true, so he, in great jubilation, telegraphed Sir Cæsar Camp and others to meet him at his office, and they did so. He told him that he had private information about the market, and, after some slight hesitation, they all went in. He arranged with them that the sale would be made at once after the rise.

Next day it was announced that a million of money was put against the corner, and wheat sprang up a few pou's, but not as much as they had expected it would. Madax could have sold out without loss, but saw that he would not double his money, for the corner was stronger than any of them had thought. But after the slight rise, down went the price of wheat again. The very bottom seemed to have dropped out of the market. Madax's £25,000 were swept out of sight, and so was the million that his deluded friends had put in with him. All the confidence that Madax had put in his wife had now departed, so he merely telegraphed to her that he was nel Skirt a danger signal.

The medal presented by the French Government bearing the insignia of the Legion of Honor was last week presented to Jennie Creek, a little 10 year-old miss of Milford, Blackford County. Ohio, who saved the train load of World's Fair passengers on the Pittsburg, Cincinnati, Chicago & St. Louis Railroad last Summer.

While walking along the track Jennie discovered that the trestle across a deep ravine was on fire and she knew the expres was nearly due. With remarkable pres ence of mind the little girl tore off her red flannel petticoat and ran down the track until she came in sight of the approching train and waved her skirt as a danger signal

Several hundred World's Fair passenger were on board and among them a number of French passengers. The latter called the attention of the French World's Fair Commissioner to the incident and he in turn laid it before President Carnot. The French Government communicated with Governor McKinley of Ohio, and through him learned the child's address. Upon learning it President Carnot at once forwarded a a medal of the Legion of Honor given only in recognition of acts of heroism

Shad-hatching has been suspended the Government hatchery near Harve de Grace on account of the floods. Some 3 000,000 fry had to be liberated, and half a million undeveloped eggs were lost.

Owing to the late frost the orange crop of California will be far below the average for this season. The total output from South ern California will reach about 40, 000 ca loads, of which over 3000 will come Eas This is twenty per cent, below last season

The California "Fruit Grower report that the peach crop will this year prove the heaviest ever grown in that State, Apricots and some other fruit promise little mor than half a crop. The first peaches of the season were received in San Francisco this week shipped from Vacaville ranche and sold $1.50 per box.

MR. CARTER'S WILL IS GOOD.

It is Sustained by a Jury on All the Issues Raised. The jury in the Carter will case, removed from Queen Anne's country to Talbot after being out less than half an hour, rendered a verdict sustaining the will on all the issues. It occupied four days to take the testimony, one day for counsel to argue it and twenty minutes for the jury to decide the case. Mr. Carter, the testator, died last year, leaving a widow and four sons and daughters and an estate of about $80,000 devised to them according to the terms of a will, which was duly probated. One of the daughters is the wife of the Rey. Isaac Jewell, of the Wilmington Methodist Epis copal Conference. Her portion, as well as that of another married daughter, was limited by the will to a life-tenure should they die without issue. It was these daughters and their husbands who contested the will on the ground of testamentary incapacity and undue influence.

DIED FROM COAL GAS.

An Aged Couple Found Dead in Their

Emanuel and Rachel Bettz, an aged couple who recently moved to Newark from Newport, were found dead in their beds last Saturday night. They had evidently been dead for some days. Their death was caused by suffication from coal gas.

The room was tightly closed and a stove near the bed with lids open, was half filled with coal half burned, showing that a fire had been started to dry the house and had burned so slowly as to fill the room with gas and asphyxiate its inmates. Thei death probably occured on Tuesday night, as their bodies were in an advanced state of decomposition. It was their first night in their new home, and their last. They were buried on Sunday at the M. E. Cemetery of Newark.

Jackson to Hang. Governor Brown, on Thursday signed the death warrant of William Jackson, colored, who was convicted recently in the circuit court of Queen Ann's county for the murder of George J. Hood's Sarsaparilla Perfectly Cured "C. I. Hood & Co., Lowell, Mass.:
"Dear Sirs:—I wish to testify to the great value of Hood's Sarsaparilla. For some time I had been troubled with scrofula, which early last winter assumed a very bad form.

Sores Appeared on My Face and hands and gradually increased in number until they reached to my shoulder. The doctors said it was the worst case of scroula they ever saw and also went so far as to say it was in-ourable. I tried ointments and other remedies but to no avail. A friend recommended Hood's
